PROFESSIONAL SUMMARY

A financial analyst who automates what others do by hand: I designed an AI tool that cuts document-generation time by 85%, while evaluating hundreds of financing operations every month for individuals, sole traders, and SMEs. Over 5 years combining analytical rigor, process management, and direct client relationships. Now looking for a dynamic role with direct client exposure, where that same judgment translates into real-time business decisions.

EXPERIENCE

Mercedes-Benz Financial Services

Madrid, Spain

Credit Risk & Financial Operations Analyst

11/2022 – Present

- Designed and built an internal AI tool that automatically generates non-payment annex agreements (contract addenda for delinquent accounts), including verification of signing authority through analysis of powers of attorney; cuts processing time per case by more than 85% — from several minutes to 15-30 seconds depending on client complexity.
- Evaluate an average of 250 to 500 financing operations per month, ranging from €30,000 to €500,000, for individual clients, sole traders (autónomos), and SMEs.
- Take part weekly in credit risk and control committees, and in monthly performance reviews and executive reporting, contributing to a steady reduction in approval times (currently around 5 hours for individuals and 6 hours for companies).
- Analyze company financial statements (balance sheets, P&L, CIRBE credit bureau reports, solvency and liquidity ratios), providing technical input for risk committee decisions.
- Collaborate with sales teams to close complex deals, balancing risk control with business viability.
